

Department: Anthropology

Effective Date of Appointment: Fall 2006
(Subject to Budgetary Approval)

Rank: Assistant Professor, Tenure Track

Salary: $43,632-$53,772

Qualifications: The Department of Anthropology at California State University, Northridge invites applications for a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor, beginning Fall Semester 2006, in Archaeology with a specialization in California and/or the Southwest. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in hand, or near completion, at time of appointment. Applicants that do not have a Ph.D. at time of appointment will be appointed as a one-year lecturer and converted to tenure track at completion of the doctorate. A Ph.D. will be required for the granting of tenure. The successful applicant will be one who has evidence of teaching excellence and research potential and be able to offer courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Applicants must also be able to facilitate local fieldwork opportunities for students, have a strong, theoretically-based research interest in forager studies, economic and political organization in non-hierarchical societies, and/or emergent cultural complexity, and a research/practice focus on cultural resources management and/or heritage policy and preservation issues. CSUN is a Learning Centered University. The successful candidate will be expected to join faculty and staff in a commitment to active learning, to the assessment of learning outcomes, and to multiple pathways that enable students to graduate. At time of appointment, the successful applicant, if not a U.S. citizen, must have authorization from the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services to work in the United States.

Responsibilities: The normal teaching load is 12 units per semester, although a reduced teaching load is available the first year of appointment. The successful candidate will teach and mentor a highly diverse student population, and participate actively in community and university service. He or she will be responsible for undergraduate courses in Human Origin and Culture, Indians of North America, Indians of California and the Southwest, Prehistoric Archeology, Archeology of North America, and for graduate courses in Management of Cultural Resources (seminar), Lab Methods in Archeology, California Archeology, Problems in Archeology (seminar), and a Practicum in Cultural Resource Management.

Application Deadline: Applications received by October 15, 2005, will be included in the first review and selection of candidates to be interviewed. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Applications should include a letter of application, curriculum vita, names of three references, sample of scholarly writing and teaching evaluations if available. Faxed applications will not be accepted.
