Guidelines for Preparation of a Portfolio to Meet the Program Exit Requirement

Reading Certificate Program (K-12)

and/or

Reading and Language Arts Specialist Credential Program (K-12)

In order to successfully complete the Reading Certificate Program and/or the Reading and Language Arts Specialist Credential program, all candidates are required to submit for faculty review a portfolio that demonstrates mastery of six domains of professional competencies. The portfolio will contain artifacts from Program courses that provide evidence of the candidate's aptitude, skills, and knowledge of research and content related to diverse K-12 readers.

Professional Competencies To Be Met

1. Assessment and Instruction

The candidate demonstrates the ability to assess the academic needs, interests, attitudes, and achievement of students including English speakers and English Language Learners. These assessments are effectively used to make decisions related to appropriate instruction and materials in reading, writing, speaking, and listening for a class and/or for an individual student.

2. Instructional Materials

The candidate demonstrates the ability to provide leadership in the selection, adaptation, and use of instructional materials, including the textbook adoption process.

3. Teacher Support

The candidate demonstrates the ability to assist and support classroom teachers K-12 in creating an effective literacy-rich learning environment that meets the California Content Standards of any subject area.

4. Program Design and Evaluation

The candidate demonstrates the ability to work with the school or district to design effective reading and language arts programs that meet State standards and guidelines. The candidate demonstrates the ability to conduct a comprehensive program review and to suggest needed modifications.

5. Professional Development

The candidate demonstrates the ability to design and implement professional development activities, including in-service education programs.

6. Professional Leadership

The candidate demonstrates the ability to assume a leadership role in the school and community, including working collaboratively with allied professionals, district/county personnel, and members of the community.

Selection of the artifacts that best represent your abilities:

From your course products, select those items that best represent your level of professional competence. The items you select should represent most of the courses within the program and should demonstrate content and knowledge related to K-12 and to diverse readers.

Submit the original copy of each item, including the course professor's comments and/or rubric showing the grade received. If any artifacts seem minimal or received a low grade, consider what other evidence you might include to show your professional growth since that project grade was received. If the best artifact for a competency was collaboratively produced, pair it with another artifact that is your individual work. In your reflective statement, describe the extent of your work within the collaborative group.

Artifacts might include, but are not limited to, the following:

- research papers
- reports of research conducted, including action research
- literature review and research design
- annotated bibliographies related to a literacy topic
- materials for a faculty/parent in-service or conference session
- program evaluation documents including recommendations for modifications
- case study reports including assessment information and intervention/corrective recommendations
- videotapes of presentations, assessment components
- analyses of commercially produced materials
- instructional materials you have developed
- collaboratively written documents (when paired with individual work addressing a competency)

Organization of the artifacts

Three-hole punch all materials and compile in a binder so no items will be loose/lost. Create a Table of Contents that lists the titles of each professional competency and the artifacts you have included as evidence for each competency. Use section dividers and tabs so the beginning of each section is easily located and your materials are professionally presented.

Begin each section with a list of the artifacts presented as evidence of competence in this domain. Then write a reflective statement in which you analyze your own learning experiences in the program, your abilities, and your mastery level related to the elements of this domain. Examining your professor's comments on the product may guide this reflection.

Example of contents for one section with a reflective statement:

Section 1: Assessment and Instruction

- A. A Case Study of a Second Grade Bilingual Student
- B. An Analysis of a Sixth-Grade Writing Assignment: Prompt and Student Work Samples

Reading Specialists must assess student skill levels and needs by both formal and informal means, then design appropriate instruction to address the student's weaknesses while building on strengths. This case study of a second grader conducted during Spring 2006 demonstrates my ability to conduct a comprehensive assessment, then to provide systematic tutoring to strengthen weak areas. Over tutoring sessions lasting 10 weeks, this student's reading comprehension increased

Submission of the portfolio

The portfolio is submitted to the Program Coordinator, Dr. Connie White, in the Department of Elementary Education during the semester that your program coursework is to be completed. Faculty review takes a minimum of two weeks and the verification page is needed for your application for the Reading Certificate and/or the Reading and Language Arts Specialist Credential.

When improvements to the portfolio are required for successful completion of the program:

If any competencies are deemed "partially met" or "not met," then you will need to follow the comments of the reviewers to strengthen your portfolio and resubmit. Make an appointment with the Program Coordinator to discuss the needed improvements and a timeline for re-submitting the portfolio.
