

agr	faulty agreement between subject and verb awk or K	awkward
cap	use capital letter
choppy	too many short sentences coh	coherence/focus problems construction	sentence construction cf	comma fault
cs	comma splice
dm	dangling modifier
diction	inappropriate word choice ds	double space
emphasis	emphasis obscured exp or explain	you seem to be making a valid point, but your statement cannot stand alone without more explanation.
frag	fragment
G or √	good
gr	faulty grammar
ital	use italics only
is	incomplete sentence
jump	you have jumped to a new idea without providing adequate connections or transitions
L	logic; this does not follow lc	use lower case
mm	misplaced modifier
MLA	you are not using proper MLA documentation format OT	off track; you are going away from your thesis or main point pn	faulty punctuation
¶	new paragraph
//	parallelism
pass	passive writing

ref	reference of pronoun vague or misleading rep	awkward repetition
RO	run-on
RR	rough read: I understand what you're saying , but try to be clearer
/#	add a space
sub	subordinate
T	tense incorrect (note: present tense always used in narrating the content of a literary work)
trans	transition
unc	unclear
wdy	wordy
ww	wrong word
wd	reconsider word choice
w/	with
w/o	without
x or O	obvious trouble here as in this is wrong and/or circle also indicates incorrect y	your
what?	I don't know what you are referring to. You need a name, a noun, or an explanation here.
Why?	Statement is not self-explanatory. I'm not necessarily arguing against your point but you need to provide more information.
?	really? are you sure? I doubt it (or I can't read this)
!	Wow! Fun! Interesting/Surprising
😊	I like. I'm smiling.