Reporter-Weekend Anchor

Matthew comes to KTVL from Texarkana, where he was a bureau reporter for Shreveport's NBC affiliate. While there, he covered stories ranging from the aftermath of hurricanes Rita and Katrina to the world championship rototiller races in Emerson, Arkansas.

Before that, Matthew was an anchor and reporter at KCSN-FM in Los Angeles, where he was nationally recognized for his work by the Society of Professional Journalists, the Associated Press, and the Radio and Television News Director's Association. He also won two Golden Mikes from the Radio and Television News Association of Southern California for a story he did on the trials of immigrants waiting in line at government offices.

Matthew received a Journalism degree from Cal State, Northridge in 2004. In the 1990s, he was a freelance music journalist, conducting interviews with They Might Be Giants, James Taylor, and underground legend Wesley Willis.

While Matthew has travelled extensively overseas during the last several years, he is happy to call Southern Oregon home and is excited to take advantage of the many cultural and recreational opportunities the region has to offer.
