

California State University Northridge

Did
You Know...

Cal State Northridge students, all members of the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program, prepared 3,000 tax forms this past spring for low income families and individuals, saving the community $225,000 in income tax preparation fees.

CSUN engineering students placed first among schools from California and 14th in a worldwide formula race car competition among universities. The students raced against about 1,500 students from 133 schools in the 2004 Society of Automotive Engineers Formula competition at the Pontiac Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich.

Management professor Richard Moore and librarian Angela Lew have been selected to serve in the prestigious Fulbright Scholar Program. Moore, who received a Fulbright scholarship for spring 2005, will spend six months in Indonesia at the Bandung Institute of Technology in West Java. Lew has been selected as the Fulbright senior specialist in library science for the next five years, during which time she will make periodic presentations abroad.

About 50 high school students from across Los Angeles County—all children of migrant workers—spent July at Cal State Northridge taking part in an innovative program that exposed them to the arts. The students took classes in theatre, dance, poetry, voice, filmmaking and the visual arts for three weeks, culminating in a University Student Union performance to showcase what they learned.

Vol. IV · No. 1

Published by Office of Public Relations and Strategic Communications

(818) 677-2130