Cal State Northridge started out in 1956 as the San Fernando Valley campus of Los Angeles State College of Applied Arts and Sciences. In 1958, the institution became known as San Fernando Valley State College. On June 1, 1972, the campus officially became California State University, Northridge.

Under the direction of President Jolene Koester, the university offers bachelor's degrees in 63 fields and master's degrees in 51 fields.

Cal State Northridge accepts both freshmen and transfer students. Many of our students have worked for several years and are now returning to complete their degrees or to study for advance degrees.

Last year, approximately 33,000 students were enrolled at the university. A majority were women and members of an ethnic minority. Students at Cal State Northridge constitute a veritable United Nations, with enrollment coming from more than 70 foreign countries.

A "typical" CSUN undergraduate is 23.6 years of age and has transferred from a California community college. She graduated from high school with a 3.09 GPA, carries a full-time, reduced course load of about 12.11 units a semester, works 11–20 hours a week and commutes 15–29 minutes to school.

The university's programs for disabled and deaf students are recognized worldwide. These students fully take part in classes and the campus community.

Cal State Northridge is considered a leading producer of teachers among public institutions in California. It was one of only four universities nationwide recently tapped by the Carnegie Corporation of New York to take part in a landmark initiative designed to strengthen K–12 teaching by developing state-of-the-art programs at schools of education.

CSUN is one of the largest campuses in the 23-campus California State University system. It is the only four-year university serving the San Fernando Valley and covers more than 353 acres.

The university's well-known alumni include pop singer Paula Abdul, muralist Judith Baca, Hilton Hotels President Stephen Bollenbach, education leader Yvonne Chan, actress/director Joan Chen, former California Lt. Gov. Mike Curb, Los Angeles Times deputy editor Frank del Olmo, Xircon President/Founder Dirk Gates, Olympic medalist Florence Griffith-Joyner, space shuttle astronaut Scott Horowitz, actor Cheech Marin, AT&T CFO Charles Noski, opera singer Carol Vaness and MGM Chairman Alex Yemenidjian. ■
