

Food Matters: How Food Shapes Our Lives and the World

Monday, March 30, 2015, 11:00 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

Whitsett Room, Sierra Hall, 4th floor

This symposium is the culminating event in a year-long interdisciplinary exploration of the ways that we shape and are shaped by our relationships to food. Join the Global Studies and Sustainability GE Paths for a look at these issues as they are discussed in some exciting lectures and a student poster exhibition. To kick off the day in a healthy way, there will be a faculty-student game of “Glo-Volley” (a silly version of volleyball played with a gigantic beach ball). Please join us for a stimulating and fun day!

11:00-12:00	Student-Faculty game of “GloVolley” (Oviatt Lawn)
12:30-12:45	Official Welcome (Whitsett Room, CSBS)
12:45-1:15	“Food Matters Across the Globe” Dr. Mutombo N’Kulu-N’Sengha (Religious Studies, CSUN): “Dietary Laws, Taboos and “Food Theology” in African World Religions” Dr. Peri Klemm (Art, CSUN): “Food and Ritual in Papua New Guinea” Dr. Sanchi Adhikari (Geography, CSUN) “Food and India”
2:00-3:15	Guest Speaker: Dr. Molly Doane (Anthropology, University of Illinois, Chicago); “Farming and Food Sovereignty in Oaxaca, Mexico”
3:15-4:00	Student Poster Presentations
4:00-5:15	Kitty Morse, Award Winning Cookbook Author; “A Taste of the Kasbah. Discussion of Moroccan Cuisine and Demonstration”
5:15-5:30	Awards Ceremony for graduating Global Studies path students