

SUGGESTED ECONOMICS ELECTIVES TO FOCUS YOUR COURSE OF STUDY

Click here for Course Descriptions

If you are interested in:	Then select electives from among these courses:
Macroeconomics/Financial Markets Advice: Professor Krol	ECON 311, 320, 405, 409 OR see the Financial Economics Course of Study
Public Policy Advice: Professor Lowenberg	ECON 433, 320, 350, 355, 360, 365, 405, 411
Business/Economics Advice: Professor Lee	ECON 308 and ECON 311, and then select from ECON 320, ECON 355, ECON 410, ECON 411, ECON 405, ECON 408
International Economics Advice: Professor Nadenichek	ECON 370, 348, 405 OR see this Economics Major with International Electives
Poverty/Prosperity Advice: Professor Svorny	ECON 370, 348, 320, 433, 350
Law School	ECON 365, 320, 410, 411, 360, 405
Graduate School in Economics (Ph.D.) Advice: Professor Halcoussis	MATH 140, MATH 150A, MATH 150B, MATH 250, MATH 262, MATH 320, MATH 350, MATH 340, ECON 408, ECON 409, ECON 412

Advice from alumni on class selection:

Donna Tikosky ('05): One of my first projects here [Donna works as a Research Assistant for the Teacher Advancement Program Foundation] was to read about value-added. [My boss] took for granted that I had taken an econometrics class [ECON 409] and luckily I did because of Professor Halcoussis. I truly believe that every econ major should have some background in econometrics so that they will be prepared for any ball that is thrown their way (it just might be expected of them).

Mario Zamora ('05): I really feel I have a leg up on a lot of people [Mario is at the University of the Pacific School of Law] because of the lessons I learned in the Econ Dept. and notably from Prof. Whitman's class on the Law and Economics [ECON 365]. We have covered many of the same topics as I did in his class and because of that class I already understand the broad topics before anyone else

6`Ujf`>Yb_]bg`fCi`hglUbX]b[`9Wt:bc a]Mg`Gh XYbh5 k UfX`K]bbYfz&$$, t: ECON 348 History of Economic Institutions (Prof. Virts): "ECON 358 is the first class I think of when I think about my degree. How did we [the U.S.] get to this place [prosperity] and other countries did not?"