A very clear and penetrating examination of our racial diversity. A must-have publication for anyone attempting to better understand us Southern Californians.

Herb J. Wesson, Jr.,
Speaker of the California State Assembly
Sacramento, California

An absolutely critical guide for anyone interested in the rapidly changing dynamics of southern California at the turn of the 21st century. I recommend it highly for anyone interested in the future of Los Angeles and its environs.

George Sánchez, Director
Program in American Studies and Ethnicity
University of Southern California

This impressive new piece of scholarship will appeal to those seeking to understand ethnic distribution and transformation in an area that contains the most radically "diverse" population in America.

Joe R. Hicks, Executive Director of the Center for the Study of Popular Culture,
former Executive Director of the Los Angeles City
Human Relations Commission

Allen and Turner are among the premier ethnic demographers and geographers in the nation. This new atlas is the state-of-the-art description of dramatic changes underway in Los Angeles. It will soon be required reading at many universities.

Dowell Myers, Professor
Department of Urban Planning and Demography
University of Southern California

Anyone who wants to know how US metropolitan areas are going to look in 20 years time should read this fascinating, informed and carefully researched monograph about Southern California. Using Los Angeles as a lens, Allen and Turner have examined the future of the American city and mapped the evolving ethnic complexity of one of the world's most dynamic cities.

William A.V. Clark, Professor
Department of Geography
University of California, Los Angeles

Another cartographical feast. Allen and Turner spread The Ethnic Quilt to the 5-county region and map its shifting geographies using the latest census data. More than an updating, Changing Faces, Changing Places charts new ground for all those interested in the population dynamics of Southern California.

Edward W. Soja, Professor
Department of Urban Planning
University of California, Los Angeles

James Allen and Eugene Turner have done it again. Changing Faces, Changing Places provides the most authoritative and comprehensive overview of the demographic changes in Southern California. Like their ground-breaking work The Ethnic Quilt, this is an essential reference volume for anyone who is interested in the present and future of this important and dynamic region.

Edward J.W. Park, Director
Asian Pacific American Studies Program (APAM)
Loyola Marymount University

The authors are professors in the Department of Geography at California State University, Northridge. James Allen specializes in population and cultural geography. Eugene Turner specializes in cartography and geographic information systems.

A very clear and penetrating examination of our racial diversity. A must-have publication for anyone attempting to better understand us Southern Californians.

Herb J. Wesson, Jr.,
Speaker of the California State Assembly
Sacramento, California

An absolutely critical guide for anyone interested in the rapidly changing dynamics of southern California at the turn of the 21st century. I recommend it highly for anyone interested in the future of Los Angeles and its environs.

George Neff, Director
Program in American Studies and Ethnicity
University of Southern California

This impressive new piece of scholarship will appeal to those working to understand ethnic distribution and transformation in an area that contains the most radically "diverse" population in America.

Joe R. Halie, Executive Director of the Center for the Study of Popular Culture
former Executive Director of the Los Angeles City
Human Relations Commission

Allen and Turner are among the premier ethnic demographers and geographers in this nation. This new atlas is the state-of-the-art description of dramatic changes underway in Los Angeles. It will soon be required reading at many universities.

David Myers, Professor
Department of Urban Planning and Demography
University of Southern California

Anyone who wants to know how US metropolitan areas are going to look in 20 years time should read this fascinating, informed and carefully researched monograph about Southern California. Using Los Angeles as a lens, Allen and Turner have examined the future of the American city and mapped the evolving ethnic complexity of one of the world's most dynamic cities.

William A.V. Clark, Professor
Department of Geography
University of California, Los Angeles

Another cartographical feast. Allen and Turner spread The Ethnic Quilt to the 5-county region and map its shifting geographies using the latest census data. More than an updating, Changing Faces, Changing Places charts new ground for all those interested in the population dynamics of Southern California.

Edward W. Soja, Professor
Department of Urban Planning
University of California, Los Angeles

James Allen and Eugene Turner have done it again. Changing Faces, Changing Places provides the most authoritative and comprehensive overview of the demographic changes in Southern California. Like their groundbreaking work, The Ethnic Quilt, this is an essential reference volume for anyone who is interested in the present and future of this important and dynamic region.

Edward J.W. Park, Director
Asian Pacific American Studies Program (APAM)
Loyola Marymount University

The authors are professors in the Department of Geography at California State University, Northridge. James Allen specializes in population and cultural geography. Eugene Turner specializes in cartography and geographic information systems.