

One-Page Essay 3

Philosophy 450: Advanced Epistemology and Metaphysics

Tim Black
California State University, Northridge
Spring 2006

“Better reasoning results in success (or in a greater degree of success).” How do we measure or detect success? Does doing so rely on intuition at all? If so, does that impugn an epistemology done in some way other than the standard analytic way (or, in particular, an epistemology built on Ameliorative Psychology)?

Here is a link to the paper by Bishop and Trout, to which the above assignment alludes.