Russian Language & Culture Immersion Program Model

Students learn in cohorts appropriate to their entrance-level language proficiency, ensuring that all participants set and achieve challenging yet attainable goals.

Program description:

Summer Immersion Language Study: This residential program (or extended-day program for students under 18) integrates language and culture courses of study. The program is open to motivated, high-achieving students from any university, community college, ROTC program, or high school who meet the admission criteria. Students receive in-class language instruction in the mornings and afternoons and participate in Russian cultural activities and excursions during evening and weekend hours. The program includes language instruction, group activities, projects, online and individualized learning, guest lectures, and field trips. Students also have access to a body of specialized language materials including Russian websites, video/DVD documentaries, newspapers, magazines, and other relevant and contemporary reading materials. Students must communicate in Russian at all times throughout the program.

Language proficiency progress is regularly assessed by standardized tests.
