Importance of Summer Leadership Programs

ACCOUNTING ASSOCIATION
CSUN

As a transfer student, it was really hard for me to navigate myself and to know the world of accounting. My first recruiting season was in Fall 2017 where I was recruiting for internships. I was overwhelmed with all the firms I have to research because all these firms have many great things to offer: from service lines, industries, internship programs, and training. Many people have said the way to get to know these firms is to know to talk to people who work there: the professionals. That is why I went to most of the recruiting events such as Meet the Firms, firm tours, club meetings, mock interviews, and other networking events—but those events may not be enough for a student to choose what firm he or she wants to work for.

A great way to choose between these firms is through SLPs, and anyone you asked who's done SLPs would say the same because you get to know the professionals more, the history and background of each firm, the other candidates from other schools (that could possibly be your co-worker in the future), and if you actually fit in the firm's culture.

Spring semester is packed with different summer leadership programs that firms have to offer. Just like me in Spring 2018, I was a candidate for SLPs. I really liked recruiting around that time because there are firms that I was very interested in because of the service lines and industries that they have and the impact they have in that industry or market. However, it was a lot of networking and getting to know each firm. I talked to as many professionals as I could to narrow down the firms I wanted to do my SLPs with.

Vice President, Faith Sevilla
vico.president@csunaa.org

Summer of 2018, I did three SLPs. All of them were different from each other, such as team building activities, but there were some parts of the SLPs that are similar, such as firms talking about their history and having a panel of different levels of professionals to answer questions students/candidates have in mind. The most fun part of SLPs is the team building event because you get to know how people work with one another, and how well a person (YOU) works with different work ethics and personalities.

If you have the chance to participate in any SLPs, take that chance because although you may like a firm during the recruiting and networking events, you might change your mind after doing an SLP with them or the other way around. You might end up liking a firm after having a great time connecting with the people you meet at the event.

One piece of advice for any recruiting events: BE YOURSELF, YOUR PROFESSIONAL SELF.
