Qualifications:

Terminal degree in Ethnic Studies, American Studies or relevant field (i.e. Ph.D., J.D., M.D., MFA, etc.) from an accredited institution awarded prior to August 19, 2020.

At time of appointment, the successful candidate, if not a U.S. citizen, must have authorization from the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) to work in the United States.

Responsibilities:

The University especially seeks individuals who will contribute both to their chosen disciplines and to the University's commitment to student success. All faculty are expected to serve on departmental and/or university committees, contribute to teaching effectiveness, and demonstrate successful research, publication and other scholarly/professional/creative activities in their field of specialization. The standard teaching load is 12 units (4 courses per semester). Responsibilities include teaching 12 units per semester, with opportunities for reduction in teaching load for funded research. There will be a reduced teaching load during the first two years of appointment. The successful candidate is also expected to contribute the growth of the major/minor and the department, participate in faculty governance and departmental events, advise and mentor students. For purposes of reappointment, tenure and promotion, emphasis will be placed on teaching effectiveness; scholarly, creative, public scholarship, and/or community-based research products; service to the department, University and community.

We are seeking scholars/practitioners whose work/research focuses on South Asian, Southeast Asian, or Pacific Islander/Indigenous communities. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach courses in one or more of the following specialized areas: Psychology/Counseling/Social Work; Law & Legal/Policy Studies; Cinema/Television/Visual Arts; and/or Environmental Justice. The successful candidate also must be able to teach core AAS and General Education classes such as Asian American history, Introduction to Asian American Studies, and/or Contemporary Issues. Other considerations include community involvement, applied professional working experience with Asian American or Pacific Islander communities, experience working with Indigenous, immigrant, and low-income populations (whether inside or outside the classroom), and demonstrated potential to serve the overall needs of the department.

Application Deadline:

Screening of applications will begin November 20, 2019. Priority will be given to applicants who meet the screening deadline; however, the position will remain open until filled.

Please send cover letter, CV, and three letters of professional reference. Terminal degree in Ethnic Studies, American Studies or closely related field (i.e. Ph.D., JD, MD, MFA) from an accredited institution must be awarded before August 19th, 2020. In later phases of the search process, applicants may be requested to provide verification of terminal degrees, licenses and certificates.
