Seminar in Media Criticism

Description: Analysis of books, journal articles and other reviews which deal with contemporary mass communication. Particular emphasis is placed on helping students develop a critical perspective on the role of news media, media professionals, and mass communication research in our society.

Program Learning Outcomes:

A. Students can identify and explain seminal works and key concepts in the field of mass communication with a focus on critical and cultural theories as applied to journalism.

B. Students can appraise and evaluate the practices of mass communication in society with a focus on economic structures, cultural practices and international connections as applied to the practice of journalism.

C. Students can create a plan for and conduct independent research about mass communication with an emphasis on journalism as either a research topic or through the reflective application of journalism.

Grading, class participation, assignments, and required books

Grading: Class participation (including attendance) and reading assignments: 20%; facilitation of class reading: 20%; critical review of reading: 20%; literature review: 40%

Class participation: Students are expected to attend class, read the assignments, contribute to the class note-taking wiki, and participate in class discussions based on the reading material.

Facilitation of class discussion and critical review: Students will be responsible for facilitating the discussion of one or two class readings. They are expected to help all students in the class understand key terms, stimulate class discussion, and raise critical questions about that particular reading. Facilitators must contribute their notes to the class wiki and turn in a review and critical assessment of each assigned reading (3 to 4 pages each reading).

Literature review: Students will work on an original literature review in which they identify, summarize, and synthesize at least 5 recent academic journal articles (plus at least one book or article reviewed in class) that apply the theories and ideas of authors discussed in our seminar. Students will submit an original review (12–16 pages) + bibliography. The review must conform to the research guidelines and style established in the APA stylebook.

Required books and journal articles:

De Uriarte, M. (2010). Urbanizing the propaganda model. Filtered sources, worthy and unworthy victims in gentrification. (Unpublished manuscript.)

Mandatory stylebook: American Psychological Association (2009) Publication manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed.). Washington, DC: APA. (Note: 5th edition can be used.) Our library website has great resources about APA and other style guides. Please check their website:
