IV. Scholarly and Creative Contributions to the Field of Study

- A. The department values and recognizes a variety of scholarly and creative contributions in the field of education. The department requires these scholarly and creative contributions to be peer reviewed or reviewed according to the procedures outlined in IV.B.1. Peer-reviewed is defined as a scholarly contribution that has been reviewed by one or more experts in the field; this may consist of an editor, a committee of two or more journal reviewers, or some other documented review process. A minimum of three scholarly or creative contributions to the field of education are required by the department for the promotion to associate professor. The variety of scholarly and creative contributions that can count toward tenure and promotion is outlined in further detail below.

1. Peer-reviewed scholarly journals: The department requires three scholarly contributions for the award of tenure and promotion to the rank of Associate Professor, one of which must be in a peer-reviewed scholarly journal in the field of education.
 2. Other published works: These may include monographs (e.g., scholarly study on a defined topic), published proceedings from professional conferences, sound recordings, video recordings, computer software, curriculum materials used at the Pre-Kindergarten through doctoral program levels, and/or professional standards for the teaching profession. These must be widely available to the larger educational community. Additional options may include: recognition of work by professional organizations or commercial organizations engaged in the production and distribution of such material, if the material is widely used and accepted in the field of Elementary Education as an appropriate activity indicating the application of scholarship and professional service.
 3. Self-published works: Books, video or audio recordings, or software published at the author's expense or other material for which the author pays the whole or part for publication (other than articles printed in a professional journal that normally charges for publication and are not considered "predatory journals") shall be considered a publication according to the Criteria and Procedures for Evaluation of Scholarly and Creative Contributions set below in IV.B.
 4. Externally funded grants: In addition to the criteria in Section 600, the Department shall consider as a significant scholarly contribution to the field of study externally funded proposals for research, training or development grants in the field of Elementary Education when such a proposal includes a scholarly review of the literature and encompasses an original scholarly model or theory or the development or extension of such model or theory. Proposals shall be externally refereed. The original proposal and the external reviews, if attainable, should be submitted by the candidate for consideration in the personnel process.
 5. Collaborative works: Documents resulting from collaborative or consulting efforts with local, regional, state, national or international education agencies to improve practices in elementary education or in learning by elementary age children will be considered, if evaluated according to the Criteria and Procedures for the Evaluation of Scholarly and Creative Contributions set below in IV.B.
- B. Criteria and Procedures for the Evaluation of Scholarly and Creative Contributions
1. Significant Scholarly and Creative Contributions that have not been peer-reviewed may be accepted as a significant or creative contribution to the field of study after the candidate submits it to the following review process:
 - a. For external reviews of Significant Scholarly and Creative Contributions, there shall be three external reviewers, one each selected by the candidate, the Department Personnel Committee, and the Department Chair. External reviewers must be independent of CSUN. Each reviewer shall write a letter addressing the criteria listed above. The external reviewers may be:

- i. Scholars at other institutions of higher education;
 - ii. Recognized and qualified professionals from professional organizations, e.g., Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development, National Council of Teachers of English, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, International Literacy Association;
 - iii. Recognized and qualified professionals, with a minimum of an earned MA/MS and documented expertise in the content area or area of focus.
2. Scholarly and Creative Contributions that have not already been peer-reviewed and are being reviewed by the external committee created in IV.B.1 to meet the peer-review requirement shall be evaluated by the following criteria, when applicable:
- a. Goals and objectives
 - b. Preparation
 - c. Methods of inquiry
 - d. Use of multiple data sources
 - e. Results
 - f. Presentation
 - g. Critique and recommendations for further study or application
 - h. Documentation in written or electronic format
 - i. Dissemination of the product to appropriate audiences by means such as the following: journals in the field, newsletters, Education Resources Information Center (ERIC), websites, peer reviewed conference publications and/or proceedings, school district documents such as handbooks or curriculum guides, and other activities as described in IV.A.
