Reacting to the Past: A Role-Immersion Game Pedagogy Workshop
March 8th & 9th
9:00am - 3:00pm

CSUN is hosting Reacting to the Past this year! Join us to learn about and experience this role-immersion game pedagogy, where students "become" people in the histories and cultures at issue in rich, intellectually significant course texts. Currently available games range from history to literature to political science to biology and chemistry; there really is no limit on who can use them in class—or design them. Register soon; the workshop is free to all CSU faculty!

Transparent Assignment Design: A FacDev-Learning Resource Center (LRC) Collaboration
Wednesdays, April 3rd, 10th, 17th & 24th
2:30pm-4:30pm
Learning Resource Center
Oviatt Library-3rd Floor, East Wing
Stipend: $100-$200

We still have some spots available - but sign up today!

Do you find it challenging to manage course content while also addressing unanticipated student writing shortfalls? Do you tell your students, “go get help at the LRC Writing Center?” While the Writing Center helps students with writing at all stages, many faculty don’t realize some easy ways they can facilitate connecting students with this campus support. Please join the LRC and Faculty Development for a four-part series as we work towards creating more transparent writing prompts and more effective collaborations between instructors and the Writing Center to help address student writing improvement across the disciplines and at all levels.

Please visit the Faculty Development Event Page for more information and to apply.
