VII. Discussion Items

Food Pantry Discussion with Dr. Shellie Ruelas-Bischoff, AVP Student Affairs. Dr. Bischoff discussed what the campus is doing to help CSUN students with food insecurities. She stated there are two potential locations she is working with where the university would support a food pantry/shelf operation. The program is still in development but would be overseen by the Matador Involvement Center and work with the various community food shelf operations in the area so student will always have options. Dr. Bischoff stated that the university will work with student organizations like the Matador Food Bank (MIC) to offer opportunities for community service through the MIC. She clarified that it is not the intent of the University to take over any group or clubs efforts to collect and distribute food but to help in the process. The main goal of establishing the campus food pantry is to help centralize the process on campus and make it easier for those who want to donate, those who would like to organize a collection, and those students who are in need of food.
