

Jeff Stolle is an Enterprise Risk Management and Insurance professional with 20+ years of experience.

Since mid-2018 he has solely been the Director of Risk Management for Castle & Cooke, Inc., based in Westlake Village, California.

In early 2014, Jeff assumed the responsibility for the risk management strategies for Castle, while continuing to manage the risk management department of Castle's sister company, Dole Food Company, Inc., for which he had led since 2011.

Prior to Dole, Jeff was the Director of Risk Management for Career Education Corporation, where he was responsible for the management of all of the company's insurance activities, while also leading the development and management of the firm's Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) initiative.

Previous to the department leadership positions, Jeff enhanced his risk management knowledge and skills through opportunities with increasing responsibilities at Johnson & Higgins (Marsh), OfficeMax, American Electric Power Company, and PepsiCo, Inc.

Currently, Jeff serves on the Los Angeles RIMS Board as its Chapter President, having previously served as Vice President and Programming Chair. Jeff also participates on multiple insurance industry advisory councils and is a frequent speaker at local and national risk management industry events.

Jeff is the past Chair of the National RIMS Technology Advisory Council and a past member of the Society's ERM Development Committee. He has also served as a Director and Programming Chair of the Chicago RIMS Chapter and was a founding member of the Ohio University, College of Business, Finance Advisory Council.

Jeff holds the ARM designation and has a bachelor's degree from Ohio University and an MBA from Cleveland State University.