

BI-ANNUAL MEN OF COLOR ENQUIRY & STUDENT POSTER SESSION

Featured Speaker
Prof. Maurice Arrington

“Understanding the History and Liberating Experiences of African American Male Student Athletes”

ABSTRACT: The aim of this presentation is to educate participants on the process in which African American male student-athletes have been historically subjugated and exploited for their athleticism throughout slavery, the civil rights era and in intercollegiate athletics. On the other hand, several African-American male student-athletes have used these exploitative practices to their advantage. A review of how selective African-American male student-athletes utilized their status as a platform to raise the social consciousness on issues of social justice and equality in the African American community and society as a whole will be discussed.

Note: Communication services (sign language interpreters, note takers, real-time captionists, or assistive listening devices) are available for this event. Requests for services must be submitted at least five (5) working days in advance. Please contact Dr. Cedric Hackett at cedric.hackett@csun.edu or (818)677-3311.

Please join the “PAS 325: The Black Man in Contemporary Times” class as student groups will present posters on their work concerning Black men.

This Inquiry-based learning approach allows students to become actively involved in the learning process and gives them the opportunity to engage in course material.
