This Special Topics GWS 495-01 (20165) History of Women’s Movements course for Spring 2019 focuses on activism and social movements among women globally, nationally and locally. We will read and discuss historic women’s movements as well as women’s role within general movements (e.g., Civil Rights Movement). Very importantly, the content of this course will include current mobilizations taking place given the existing inimical political environment and the rolling back of hard-fought policies on behalf of women across race, sexuality, class, ability and immigrant status.

Spring 2019 Wednesday 4:00PM - 6:45PM Jerome Richfield 221