Dr. Allison Calhoun-Brown, Vice President for Student Engagement & Programs

Dr. Allison Calhoun-Brown is Vice President for Student Engagement & Programs at Georgia State University. Since 2008 she has led the University's Academic Advisement Center as well as all Georgia State Success Programs, utilizing data to develop strategic initiatives to promote student achievement, facilitate academic progression and increase graduation. Incorporating the use of predictive analytics, Dr. Calhoun-Brown has implemented new and innovative programming to address issues of effective academic advising, unmet student financial need, curricular progression barriers and support for at-risk student populations. During her tenure, the University has reached record levels for its graduation rate, as well as the number of degrees it confers. Today, Georgia State University has one of the most rapidly increasing graduation rates in the country and there are no differences in rates based on race, ethnicity or income. Dr. Calhoun-Brown earned a B.A. in Government from Oberlin College and an M.A. and Ph.D. in Political Science from Emory University. She is a tenured professor in the Department of Political Science and co-author of a newly released edition of the book, Religion and Politics in the United States.
